17. John Stone, Nathaniel Manton and Methuselah Turnor, Trustees or assigns under City of London authority | after 1632 - 23 February 1657

Transfer: Received the manor from the City of London trustees pursuant to several Acts of Common Council; they later sold it by an indenture enrolled in Chancery on 23 February 1657.

Holding: Trust / City-appointed trustees and assigns

Relationship to present holder: Not recorded

18. Francis Purley, Gentleman of the Inner Temple, London, trustee | 23 February 1657 - 26 April 1658

Transfer: Purchased the manor from John Stone, Nathaniel Manton and Methuselah Turnor by an indenture enrolled in the Court of Chancery on 23 February 1657; he held as trustee for Sir Drayner Massingberd and released it to him on 26 April 1658.

Holding: Trust / Trustee for Sir Drayner Massingberd

Relationship to present holder: Not recorded

19. Sir Drayner Massingberd, knight | 26 April 1658 - before 1835

Transfer: Received the manor by release from his trustee Francis Purley on 26 April 1658. The cited source does not document the complete intervening descent to Charles Burrell Massingberd.

Relationship to present holder: Not recorded

20. Charles Burrell Massingberd, Esquire of South Ormsby | by 1835 - 1835

Transfer: Held the manor as a descendant of Sir Drayner Massingberd and died without male issue in 1835. His only daughter Harriet was his heiress.

Relationship to present holder: Not recorded

22. Charles Francis Massingberd-Mundy, Esquire, lord of the manor of Ingoldmells-cum-Addlethorpe | by 1902 - after 1902

Transfer: Identified in the dedication and introduction to the 1902 published court rolls as lord of the manor of Ingoldmells-cum-Addlethorpe and as the grandson of Harriet Massingberd and Charles Godfrey Mundy. The precise conveyance or succession date is not stated.

Relationship to present holder: Not recorded

DETAILED CONVEYANCE & DESCENT

HOLDER 1

1086 - before 1093

Robert le Despenser, Robertus Dispensator, Domesday tenant-in-chief

Transfer:

Domesday holder of the estate identified by Massingberd with Herdertorp, later Addlethorpe, and the Ingoldmells soke. The place-name identification is argued rather than absolutely certain.

Previous holder:

Wiglac

Holding arrangement:

sole

Narrative / explanation:

Domesday Book records the manor of Herdertorp under the land of Robert le Despenser, with a soke in Guldelsmere. Massingberd identifies Herdertorp with Addlethorpe and Guldelsmere with Ingoldmells, thereby treating this as the earliest documentary appearance of the later Ingoldmells-cum-Addlethorpe manor. Wiglac is recorded as the pre-Conquest holder in the Domesday entry, but the source does not document the precise transfer from Wiglac to Robert le Despenser.

HOLDER 2

before 1093 - 1093-1100

Urso de Abitot, Hereditary sheriff of Worcestershire

Transfer:

Held the manor before the exchange recorded in a royal charter dated palaeographically and politically between 1093 and 1100, by which Urso de Abitot exchanged Ingolnesmera with Robert de Lacy.

ADDLETHORPE MANOR

Previous holder:

Robert le Despenser

Holding arrangement:

sole

Narrative / explanation:

A Duchy of Lancaster charter records an exchange of Ingolnesmera, identified with Ingoldmells, between Urso de Abitot and Robert de Lacy. Massingberd explains Urso's possession as probably arising from his relationship to Robert le Despenser, but the family-succession explanation is not itself treated as the conveyance; the documented conveyance is the exchange with Robert de Lacy.

HOLDER 3

1093-1100 - before c.1212

Robert de Lacy, Robert de Laceio, Lacy landholder

Transfer:

Acquired Ingoldmells through the documented exchange with Urso de Abitot. The subsequent descent within the Lacy and Honor of Pontefract interests is not fully documented in the cited source for every intermediate holder.

Previous holder:

Urso de Abitot

Holding arrangement:

sole

Narrative / explanation:

Robert de Lacy received Ingoldmells in the exchange recorded by the Duchy of Lancaster charter. The later Lacy descent is supported by the discussion of the Lacy family and by the appearance of Roger de Lacy and his widow in the historical account, but the source does not provide a continuous instrument-by-instrument descent from Robert de Lacy to every later Lacy holder.

HOLDER 4

circa 1212 - before 1221

Roger de Lacy's widow, Widow of Roger de Lacy

Transfer:

Held the Ingoldmells property as recorded in Testa de Nevill after Roger de Lacy's death; the source does not name her in the excerpt.

Previous holder:

Roger de Lacy

Holding arrangement:

other

Narrative / explanation:

Massingberd states that Roger de Lacy's widow held the Ingoldmells property circa 1212. This is a documented holding, but the cited excerpt does not name the widow or specify the legal form of her interest beyond the record's statement that she held the property.

HOLDER 5before 1232 - 1240*John de Lacy, earl of Lincoln from 23 November 1232*Transfer:

Inherited or succeeded to the Lacy interest before becoming earl of Lincoln; the source explicitly identifies him as the son and heir of Roger de Lacy.

Previous holder:

Roger de Lacy

Holding arrangement:

sole

Narrative / explanation:

John de Lacy is identified as Roger de Lacy's son and heir and as the holder of the Ingoldmells property before his death in 1240. The source links him directly to the manor through the Lacy descent and the later record of the property in his widow's right.

Transfer:

Held the Ingoldmells property in right of his wife Margaret, widow of John de Lacy.

Previous holder:

Margaret de Quincy, widow of John de Lacy

Holding arrangement:

other

Shared holding:

Walter Marshal in right of Margaret de Quincy

Narrative / explanation:

After marrying Margaret de Quincy about 6 January 1243, Walter Marshal, fifth earl of Pembroke, held the Ingoldmells property in her right. Testa de Nevill also records Walter Marshal as holding Ingoldmells, Partney, Burgh, Steeping and Skegness of the king in chief of the Honor of Peverel or Peverfrey, as transcribed by Massingberd.

Edmund de Lacy, Son and heir of John de Lacy and Margaret de Quincy, Lord of Swillington, Baron of Pontefract

Transfer:

Succeeded as son and heir of John and Margaret after the death of Walter Marshal; the cited source does not narrate a separate conveyance instrument.

Previous holder:

Walter Marshal

Holding arrangement:

sole

Narrative / explanation:

The source states that Edmund de Lacy was the son of John and Margaret and that he died in 1258 before his mother. His position in the Lacy succession places the Ingoldmells property in the Lacy line, but the cited excerpt does not give a separate conveyance document.

HOLDER 9

1258 - 5 February 1311

Henry de Lacy, 3rd earl of Lincoln, 5th Baron of Pontefract, prominent baron under Edward I, lord of Elland, lord of Swillington

Transfer:

Succeeded Edmund de Lacy as his son and heir and was lord of Ingoldmells by the time of the earliest surviving court rolls.

Previous holder:

Edmund de Lacy

Holding arrangement:

sole

Narrative / explanation:

Henry de Lacy, earl of Lincoln, is explicitly described as lord of Ingoldmells when the earliest surviving court rolls were written. He also held free warren in Ingoldmells in 1276. In 1292 he granted the Honor of Pontefract to the king, but a later entail settled the relevant castles and manors, including Ingoldmells, on Thomas, earl of Lancaster, and Alice, with remainder to Thomas's heirs.

HOLDER 17after 1632 - 23 February 1657*John Stone, Nathaniel Manton and Methuselah Turnor, Trustees or assigns under City of London authority*Transfer:

Received the manor from the City of London trustees pursuant to several Acts of Common Council; they later sold it by an indenture enrolled in Chancery on 23 February 1657.

Previous holder:

Edward Ditchfield, John Heighlord, Humphrey Clarke and Francis Moss

Holding arrangement:

trust

Shared holding:

City-appointed trustees and assigns

Narrative / explanation:

The City trustees conveyed the manor to John Stone, Nathaniel Manton and Methuselah Turnor, their heirs and assigns, under authority of several City Common Council Acts. The source does not give the date of that conveyance, but records their later sale by an indenture enrolled in the Court of Chancery on 23 February 1657.

ADDLETHORPE MANOR

Transfer:

Purchased the manor from John Stone, Nathaniel Manton and Methuselah Turnor by an indenture enrolled in the Court of Chancery on 23 February 1657; he held as trustee for Sir Drayner Massingberd and released it to him on 26 April 1658.

Previous holder:

John Stone, Nathaniel Manton and Methuselah Turnor

Holding arrangement:

trust

Shared holding:

Trustee for Sir Drayner Massingberd

Narrative / explanation:

Francis Purley of the Inner Temple, London, gentleman, purchased the manor in an indenture enrolled on 23 February 1657. The source expressly states that he was trustee for Sir Drayner Massingberd and that, in performance of the trust, he granted and released the manor to Massingberd on 26 April 1658.

HOLDER 20

by 1835 - 1835

Charles Burrell Massingberd, Esquire of South Ormsby

Transfer:

Held the manor as a descendant of Sir Drayner Massingberd and died without male issue in 1835. His only daughter Harriet was his heiress.

Previous holder:

Sir Drayner Massingberd

Holding arrangement:

sole

Narrative / explanation:

The source states that Sir Drayner Massingberd's great-grandson, Charles Burrell Massingberd, died without male issue in 1835, leaving an only daughter and heiress, Harriet. The intervening descent from Sir Drayner to Charles Burrell is not set out in the published account.

HOLDER 21

1835 - after 1835

Harriet Massingberd, Only daughter and heiress of Charles Burrell Massingberd

Transfer:

Inherited as the only daughter and heiress of Charles Burrell Massingberd after his death in 1835. The source states that she was the wife of Charles Godfrey Mundy and that their grandson later held the manor.

Previous holder:

Charles Burrell Massingberd

Holding arrangement:

sole

Narrative / explanation:

Harriet Massingberd succeeded as the only daughter and heiress of Charles Burrell Massingberd. Her marriage to Charles Godfrey Mundy is recorded as family context, but the cited source does not state that her husband held the manor in his own right; therefore he is not entered as a separate manor holder.

by 1902 - after 1902

Charles Francis Massingberd-Mundy, Esquire, lord of the manor of Ingoldmells-cum-Addlethorpe

Transfer:

Identified in the dedication and introduction to the 1902 published court rolls as lord of the manor of Ingoldmells-cum-Addlethorpe and as the grandson of Harriet Massingberd and Charles Godfrey Mundy. The precise conveyance or succession date is not stated.

Previous holder:

Harriet Massingberd

Holding arrangement:

sole

Narrative / explanation:

Charles Francis Massingberd-Mundy is explicitly identified as lord of the manor of Ingoldmells-cum-Addlethorpe in the 1902 publication of the court rolls. The source describes him as the grandson of Harriet Massingberd and Charles Godfrey Mundy, but does not document the exact legal instrument or date by which the manor passed to him. No later secure historical holder has been added from the sources reviewed.
