DETAILED CONVEYANCE & DESCENT

HOLDER 1

8 Henry II, approximately 1162

Adam de Cunteville

Transfer:

Unknown; royal fine concerning Alvoceston, identified as Alfoxton

Holding arrangement:

sole

Narrative / explanation:

A royal fine in the eighth year of Henry II records Adam de Cunteville obtaining a writ of right concerning a knight's fee in Alvoceston, identified by the antiquarian source as Alfoxton. This is early evidence for Adam's interest in Alfoxton, but the record does not establish whether he held the complete manor, nor does it identify the preceding conveyance.

John St. Albyn of Chilton Trivet, later of Alfoxton

Transfer:

Earlier transfer unknown; first securely located St. Albyn holder of Alfoxton

Holding arrangement:

sole

Narrative / explanation:

The family descent identifies John St. Albyn of Chilton Trivet as later of Alfoxton by about 1507. A separate historical account states that the Alfoxton estate had entered the St. Albyn family by 1499. The precise instrument or transaction by which John acquired or inherited Alfoxton has not been located, so no specific conveyance is asserted.

St. Albyn family and trustees

Narrative / explanation:

Local historical material states that properties forming part of the Alfoxton estate were owned by the St. Albyn family and latterly by their trustees before the 1920 dispersal sale. This evidence concerns the Alfoxton estate and its constituent properties, not necessarily the undivided manorial title. The individual trustees and the legal instrument by which the property passed after Langley St. Albyn have not been identified, so no named personal conveyance is asserted.
