Previous holder:

Unknown

Holding arrangement:

sole

Narrative / explanation:

A published account of Cambridgeshire records that Roger Jenyns had purchased the manor of Allington and Vauxes in Bottisham several years before 1673. A memorial inscription at Bottisham records Sir Roger Jenyns as lord of the manor of Allington and Vauxes and gives his death date as 22 September 1740. The evidence establishes his lordship but does not identify the transferor or permit a more precise acquisition date.

Source citation:

William Cobbett, The Parliamentary History of England, or comparable early nineteenth-century county account reproduced in Magna Britannia, Cambridgeshire section: statement that Sir Roger Jenyns purchased the Manor of Allington and Vauxes in Bottisham several years before 1673; corroborated by the memorial inscription to Sir Roger Jenyns reproduced in the Gentleman's Magazine Library.
