ABOUT THE MANOR

The armiger's background information from his previous entries remains largely unchanged except that he is now remarried with two more heraldic heirs, is a Grand Cordon (1st Class) of the Royal and Hashemite Order of the Pearl, a Member (5th Class) of the Order of Prince Danilo I, and Lord of the Manor of Thorndon Parva (Little Thorndon) in the County of Suffolk, England. The Manor of Thorndon existed before the Norman conquest of 1066, was mentioned in both Domesday and Little Domesday in 1086, and was a royal manor over several decades being owned at various times by King Edward I, King Edward II, Queen Isabella of France, King Edward III, King Richard II, Queen Mary I of England, Queen Elizabeth I, and King James VI & I among a few others before Thorndon Parva became its own sub-manor through royal assent by 1629, the first year that separate manorial records exist at The National Archives.
