ABOUT THE MANOR

The Lordship of Redisham is in the Wangford hundred in the County of Suffolk. The manor is recorded in the Domesday survey of 1086. It was held by Robert de Curcum, of Rodger Bigot. The lordship passed to Hugo de Berry in the reign of Henry I. Walter Redisham was lord of the manor in 1267. He held the free warren, which was the royal licence to hunt in the manor. The lordship passed to Roesia de Redisham, who was lord of the manor in 1281. Sir John de Norwich was lord of the manor in 1358, and he too obtained a grant of free warren for this manor. Sir John de Norwich left the manor to his grandson, another John. He was succeeded as lord of the manor by Katherine de Brews. She sold it to Trustees, of whom the principal one was Sir Robert Howard. They conveyed the lordship to the College at Mettingham Castle, who retained the manor until the Dissolution of the Monasteries, when it was vested by an Act of Parliament in the person of his late Majesty Henry VIII. The manor was one of those sold by the King to raise money in the City of London. An inquisition of 1543 stated that William Rede, a liveryman of the Mercers' Company, died lord of the manor in 1543. The crown acquired the manor again and Queen Elizabeth I was lord of the manor. In the 17th century the crown sold the lordship and John Garden became lord of the manor. Subsequently the lordship came to Lord Lichfield, whose descendants conveyed it to the present owner. Rights, customs and incidentsHe held the free warren, which was the royal licence to hunt in the manor.

Sir John de Norwich was lord of the manor in 1358, and he too obtained a grant of free warren for this manor.
