The institutional holder associated with the pre-1340 estate. The estate was reportedly forfeited and came into Crown hands before Sir William Felton's acquisition.

NOTES / SOURCES

This entry records the predecessor institution and the Crown-custody stage; it should not be interpreted as proof that the abbot personally held the entire later Balliol estate in identical form.

Research sources:

- H. B. Workman, John Wyclif, volume 1, chapter 3, reporting that Sir William Felton purchased the Abbotsley revenues from the Crown after forfeiture from the abbot of Jedburgh; corroborated by the Balliol College historical account of the Abbotsley benefaction.
